PRESS RELEASE 20/03/2025

EthiFinance is launching a range of tools for assessing climate transition plans, to guide companies and enlighten investors.

Faced with the urgency of climate change and the growing pressure on natural resources and biodiversity, our economies need to accelerate their transition. This is now a matter of economic resilience, security and even sovereignty.

To manage their transition plans effectively, company directors need reliable data to assess the alignment of their strategies with the required standards. For their part, committed investors need to be able to make fully informed decisions.

That's why EthiFinance is introducing two new tools to help its clients—and the market as a whole—assess climate transition plans with a concrete evaluation of commitments and actions taken by economic players.

In line with its qualitative approach and commitment to supporting a sustainable transition, EthiFinance has developed these solutions through a major methodological effort, in collaboration with Climact experts.

They come in a range of two complementary products designed to:

- Help investors guide their investment decisions and structure their engagement strategy
- Enable companies to evaluate and benchmark their performance, optimizing their transition plans and ensuring alignment with stakeholder expectations.

Two decision-making tools on climate issues

- "Climate Transition Assessment”: a standardized tool based on publicly available data, targeted at listed companies. It is aimed primarily at investors but can also provide companies with a rapid assessment of their level of maturity.
- "Solicited Climate Rating”: an in-depth analysis combining documentary review and interviews. Produced on request, it is aimed at companies wishing to benchmark themselves, identify their areas for progress and accelerate their climate transition.

Aligned with the main regulations and international climate initiatives (TCFD, CSRD, SBTi, etc.), these tools have the same underlying methodology and are based on four pillars: impact measurement, carbon trajectory, strategy and governance.

Strategic levers to support the decarbonisation of economic players

"With this new range of tools, EthiFinance goes beyond generic ESG assessments to provide companies and investors with a more detailed and operational understanding of the climate transition. We are thus strengthening our offering to establish ourselves as a benchmark player in the European extra-financial rating market," emphasises Julia Haake, Director of 's ESG rating agency EthiFinance.
